David Savage, Los Angeles Times

David Savage, Supreme Court correspondent for the Los Angeles Times, has served in this role since 1986. Working out of the paper’s Washington, D.C. bureau, Savage has had an excellent vantage point from which to observe the high Court’s actions, decisions and changes over three decades. Prior to taking up the Court beat, Savage was the Times’ education writer based in Los Angeles.

Savage is the author of Turning Right: The Making of the Rehnquist Supreme Court, published in 1992. This book covered the efforts of the Reagan and first Bush administrations to remake the high court. He also writes a monthly column on the Court for the ABA Journal and offers regular legal commentary on National Public Radio’s "Talk of the Nation" program. Savage, who, for good or ill, is not a lawyer, grew up in the Pittsburgh area and holds degrees from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and Northwestern University.