DEAN HONORED WITH WARREN MEDAL

Barbara Doshier, dean of the School of Social Sciences, is the recipient of the Howard Crosby Warren Medal for her work in experimental psychology.

The award recognized Doshier for nearly 40 years of academic service and research on the distinct forms and processes of attention, memory and perceptual learning.

Doshier received the award at the 109th annual meeting of the Society of Experimental Psychologists at Brown University in March. She is the third UC Irvine faculty member to receive this award.

LAW STUDENTS PLACE THIRD AT COMPETITION

Anna Bennett and Stefanie Wilson, two law students from UCI, competed in the 10th annual National Animal Law Competition and placed third out of 17 teams at the NALC Appellate Moot Court Competition.

Wilson

Bennett also received a Rare Perfect Score During a Round award and received five out of six judges' votes for Best Oral Advocate in the preliminary rounds.

Wilson launched UCI Law's chapter of the Student Animal Legal Defense Fund.

"Anna and Stefanie worked extremely hard to represent UCI, and should be very proud of this result," said Trilby Robinson-Dorn, assistant law professor.

GRAD STUDENTS' RESEARCH FUNDED

Alfredo Carlos, a political science graduate student, received the Q.A. Shaw McKean Jr. Fellowship in Democratic Capitalism. The $5,000 award will support a research dissertation on how work cooperatives can transform low-income communities by supplying ownership jobs with dignity.

Joanne Nucho, an anthropology graduate student, is the recipient of the Wenner-Gren Engaged Anthropology Grant of $5,000. The grant will allow Nucho to organize an ethnographic filmmaking workshop for young adults in Lebanon.
