

Application for Legal Analysis & Writing for Practice (LAW-P)

Professor Queena Mewers, Fall 2017

Due by April 7, 2017 at 5:00 p.m.

Legal Analysis & Writing for Practice is a limited-enrollment course. Please submit your resume and answer the below questions to help Professor Queena Mewers assess whether this course is a good fit for you.

Please submit your application by email to Professor Mewers (qmewers@law.uci.edu) by April 7, 2017 at 5:00 p.m. You will be notified by April 12, 2017 if you are selected for the course.

Application

- 1) Please submit your current resume, which should be updated to include all past, current, and future or anticipated legal work experience.

- 2) Please answer all five questions below:
 - a) Why are you interested in taking this course? For example, what legal analysis and writing skills do you hope to improve?

 - b) Have you taken any other upper-division courses in which practical legal writing was a primary focus (e.g., a class or clinic that required significant, written legal-work product such as memos, briefs, opinions, and letters to clients and opposing counsel)? If so, please briefly describe the subject of your work product and the feedback you received, if any.

 - c) Have you participated in any externships, internships, pro bono projects, honors programs (e.g., moot court), or summer programs in which practical legal writing was a primary focus (e.g., you were required to produce significant, written legal-work product such as memos, briefs, opinions, and letters to clients and opposing counsel)? If so, please briefly describe the subject of your work product and the feedback you received, if any.

 - d) Which state's Bar exam are you planning to take?

 - e) Is there anything else you would like Professor Mewers to know when considering your application for this class?

If you have any questions about this course, please email Professor Mewers (qmewers@law.uci.edu).